Twenty-seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time
October 8, 2017

"The vineyard of the Lord is the house of Israel."

Today we hear another parable, this time about the landowner who plants a vineyard. Note the last verse, in which Jesus declares that the kingdom of God "will be given to a people that will produce its fruit." The task of building up that kingdom was given to us at our baptism. Let us resolve to produce its fruit in lives that bring about peace, harmony, and justice, even in everyday situations. If not, the kingdom will be given to others who will.

Pastoral Reflection

Open to all

Most of us would agree that we have been given much in our lives for which to be thankful. If we're honest with ourselves, we would also agree that despite that abundance, we often do not use what we receive as well as we should. The earth was given for all, yet we often abuse it, hurting society's most vulnerable. We can see this in the tragic rise in migrants fleeing poverty caused by environmental degradation and economic exploitation, as Pope Francis points out in Laudato Si.

In the reading from Isaiah, the Lord gives us a beautiful vineyard—our talents, earth's abundance, companionship of others—yet we take these things for granted. God expects to see justice, but there is bloodshed, suffering, and injustice. The Lord's vineyard is not exclusive; it is open to all. The vineyard's bounty goes to those who, as Paul says, do what they have learned, received, and heard in Christ Jesus.

In Psalm 80 we ask God to restore us to live out God's plan for us. Recognizing our weakness, we turn to God for strength and to realize the peace Paul says we can expect. The gospel strikes a similar chord. We are reminded that, with God's help, even a rejected stone can be not simply another foundation piece of our lives, but the cornerstone itself.
